Enduring Performance, Lasting Value

Let's face it ... your car wash only makes you money when washing cars. If you choose to buy an in-bay automatic, you expect it to be truly automatic – able to run extended periods without needing constant attention. That's why Belanger's Vector Rapid Wash® was designed with low maintenance requirements and an accessible design that maximizes uptime.

To keep Vector running smoothly, its carriage head moves on overhead travel rails that keep its motors and gears up away from dirt and grime. The swivel-free design, all-electric drive and greased-for-life bearings reduce complexity and maintenance costs. Which all underscores Vector's design premise: "If maintenance is easy, it will get done!"

“If maintenance is easy, it will get done!”

In fact, the built-in reliability of Vector has led many owners to call it their "workhorse." But delivering safe and dependable washing doesn't limit Vector's gait. Instead, Vector is built to run – cleaning up to 15 cars per hour, depending on wash selections – or up to 24 cars per hour with the HVO option.

To do this, onboard sonars size each vehicle, adjusting Vector perfectly for cars, SUVs, even dually-style pickups. The dual wash arms allow simultaneous chemical application. If a vehicle strike occurs, available break-away arms with resettable knuckle can be reset in seconds.

Because Vector sizes each vehicle, the wash arms are brought close enough to deliver a superior clean. Chemicals purge on the vehicle, not the ground, to save money and clean better.

Recent enhancements include a lube-for-life gearbox. New high-torque gearing reduces the possibility of shuttle jams while improving application. Separate water-tight fiberglass enclosures for controls and power ease installation. A larger touch screen allows flexible programming, with the ability to quickly toggle between eight wash packages. The Vector's controller now offers expanded functionality, and Web-based remote access for operators.
